

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

To provide a light-receiving element that is capable of high-speed operation and includes an optical element with controlled setting position, shape and size, a manufacturing method for the light-receiving element, and an optical module and an optical transmitting device including the light-receiving element, a light-receiving element includes a base member provided over a light-receiving surface, and an optical element provided on a top surface of the base member.